

What is domestic abuse and teen relationship abuse?

Domestic and teen relationship abuse is any type of controlling, bullying, threatening or violent behaviour between people in a personal relationship or between close family members. It includes emotional, physical, sexual, financial, psychological or digital abuse (using social media or mobile phones).

Abusive behaviour can continue even after the relationship has ended.

Domestic and teen relationship abuse is a repeated pattern of behaviour. It often includes several different types of abusive behaviour, and may get worse the longer the two people are together.

People use domestic abuse to control other people.

Both males and females can be abused or abusers.

Examples of domestic and teen relationship abuse can be:

- ▶ Constantly putting a person down
- ▶ Constantly checking where someone is
- ▶ Stopping someone from seeing their friends and family
- ▶ Hitting, pushing, kicking, pinching
- ▶ Throwing or smashing things
- ▶ Making threats to hurt someone
- ▶ Sending lots of unwanted text messages
- ▶ Checking what someone spends their money on
- ▶ Making someone pay for everything
- ▶ Making someone do sexual things they don't want to do

- ▶ Build healthy relationships
- ▶ Understand gender based bullying

The Recovery Toolkit

The Recovery Toolkit is for young people who are no longer experiencing domestic or teen relationship abuse, but may need help understanding and coming to terms with what has happened to them.

This programme provides practical tools to help young people cope with some of the ways domestic or teen relationship abuse impacts on a young person, whilst supporting them to develop positive and healthy relationships.
