The International Music Award is a big competition that celebrates talented musicians from all over the world.

UK hip-hop is a special genre loved by many young people. A survey from the Office of National Music Statistics showed that 80% of young people love hip-hop. It has meaningful lyrics, cool rhymes, and beats that make us want to dance. This music represents different experiences and perspectives in our country.

The named source shared here is called _____

I believe UK hip-hop should win because it speaks to me in a unique way. Its lyrics tell stories about real life and make me think. It's an important form of expression that deserves to be celebrated.

Does everyone think the same about UK hip-hop? _____

This means this is a fact. / opinion. [circle one]

I've been making and listening to UK hip-hop for years, and while there are other artists in the competition, I think the UK rock entry doesn't connect with young listeners like UK hip-hop does. Rock music used to be popular, but now only 56% of young people enjoy it. It's time for UK hip-hop to shine.

Why might the writer be biased? [circle one]

Because 56% of young people like rock

Because they make hip-hop so they're more likely to enjoy it

Because they write about music

Let's support the UK hip-hop artist in the International Music Award and celebrate music that resonates with us!
